

Book BeSimcha

Posted to CROWN HEIGHTS NEWS, VIDEOS

September 19, 2026

Abandoned Kaparos Chickens Highlight Serious Tza'ar Ba'alei Chayim Concern

by CrownHeights.info

The discovery of hundreds of chickens abandoned in Crown Heights Friday afternoon has drawn renewed attention to Kapparos, and the important principle of Tza'ar Ba'alei Chayim.

The first group, consisting of approximately 200 chickens, was discovered around 5:00pm Friday in crates inside an abandoned U-Haul on Winthrop Avenue between East 45th Street and Troy Avenue. According to activists, only about 80 of the chickens were still alive when they were found, with the remaining birds dead.

Soon afterward, additional chickens were discovered in a second unattended U-Haul pickup truck approximately a mile and a half away, at 910 St. Johns Place, according to animal-rights activists and police.

The chickens appeared to have been transported as part of a “Kapparos To Go” operation, with a sign identifying the service visible at one of the locations. The surviving birds were removed by animal rescuers and taken for care, while authorities investigated the circumstances surrounding the abandoned trucks.

The conditions described in the reports are deeply troubling and raise a clear concern of Tza'ar Ba'alei Chayim. Whatever the circumstances that led to the trucks being abandoned, leaving live animals without adequate food, water, shelter or care is inconsistent with the Torah's prohibition against causing unnecessary suffering to animals.

Kapparos is a longstanding pre-Yom Kippur minhag practiced by many Jewish communities. While the use of chickens is customary, others use money instead.

madisonswart

Original audio

View profile

View more on Instagram

392 likes

madisonswart

trigger warning: dead chickens. a strange scene in my neighborhood tonight: chickens were being unloaded from a u-haul and transferred into cars as nypd officers stood nearby. the truck had reportedly been left unattended for days with the chickens still inside. around five chickens had died, and the smell coming from the truck was horrible. the surviving chickens were rescued from the truck and taken to a sanctuary.

the scene comes a day after more than 80 chickens were rescued from another abandoned u-haul in brooklyn. according to gothamist, activists found birds dehydrated, weak and dying inside the truck, and the surviving chickens were also taken to a sanctuary.

the chickens are believed to have been connected to kaparos, a pre-yom kippur tradition practiced by some orthodox jewish communities that can involve the use of live chickens. activists have been responding to multiple trucks containing abandoned chickens in brooklyn this weekend.

View all 130 comments

Add a comment...

THE LETTER & THE SPIRIT-VOLUME VI
All New Letters • Fresh Off the Press
Available in Crown Heights Judaica stores & on Ebay

Related Articles

7 Comments

Make Kapparos Great Again

These “activists” are anti-Semites who view the chickens only as catalysts to attack religious Jews. Whatever they say is unreliable. They don’t care about tzar ba’alei chai. Not sure why you are dignifying them with this article.

September 20, 2026 12:21am

Set up?

Was it planted there to frame the Jews?

September 20, 2026 8:23am

Wake up

Stop the denial.

Accept that there is a problem and correct it.

September 20, 2026 11:16am

What on earth

This reads like an article by one of those activists. Just a little toned down so it could seem otherwise.

This particular situation seems bad but let's not use it against kaporos.

If they feel so badly about kaporos let them donate thousands of 5 star chicken trucks to help us with individual feeding and drinking and resting areas. After all, that's really only thing they could come out against.

September 20, 2026 12:29pm

meyer chein

You are talking trash. And creating a hillul Hashem

September 20, 2026 1:27pm

HUH?

i do not get it why you guys are leaping to conclusions, stop living in your denial bubble, that everything is perfect, and that you want everyone to be who you want them to be, that is not reality, reality is a very sad thing that chickens were left in the truck, to die, another sad thing, is the way people hold the chicken, they just hold it by t wings like a handbag, plz do not, it injures them

September 20, 2026 1:35pm

Concerned

This is not just ח"ו which is serious enough. This is a matter of menshlichkeit. Like it or not, the people of the USA are extremely serious about animal cruelty and have even been prioritizing it over... For this reason it is Chilul Hashem.

September 22, 2026 12:29am

Add your comment

Name

Email

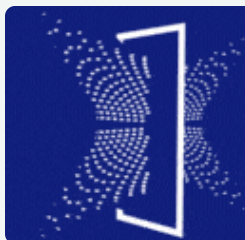

Will not be published

Comment

The comment must be no longer than 400 characters

0/400

Post comment

CONTACT US

Login

© 2005 – 2026 All Rights Reserved

Disclaimer: This website is not an official Chabad-Lubavitch website.

Please visit Chabad.org or Lubavitch.com for information on the Chabad-Lubavitch movement.

Terms | Privacy Policy |  Spotlight